Preface.

This comprehensive bibliography of County Galway lists more than 9,000 books, dissertations and periodical articles, in the period from the seventeenth century to the end of the 20th century. The material ranges from documents on the prehistoric Dún Aenghus Fort on the Aran Islands, through material on the walled town of Galway, down to coverage of our modern era of urbanization and technology.

The first edition of this work was published in 1965. Since 1970 there has been a phenomenal growth in local publishing. This second edition, containing almost six times as many entries, reflects this. The scope of the work has also been broadened considerably. What an extraordinary collection of material the author has presented, and what fascinating reading it makes. Entries include categories in biography, education, genealogy, commerce, writers, artists, and printing. It also includes maps, guidebooks, science, fisheries, law and many other subjects.

The task of documenting all material relating to the City and County of Galway was an immense one. The Bibliography's purpose, which Mary Kavanagh has expertly met, is to provide a comprehensive and cumulative survey of the County of Galway.

Although work on a bibliography such as this is never ending, the author has compiled a work which will be an indispensable reference tool for scholars and research workers, and which will also appeal to the many people who are interested in Galway local studies and genealogy.

Pat Mc Mahon.

President of the Library Association of Ireland, and Galway County Librarian.

Dedication:

This book is dedicated to the memory of my parents Patrick and Katie Kavanagh, my sister Teresa and my brother Pat, all deceased.

Acknowledgments:

I wish to acknowledge my gratitude to my Sisters Peggy, Noreen, Bernie and Phil, who encouraged me in my research at all times.

I wish to express my gratitude to my extended family, particularly my nephew Eoin, without whom this work would never have been completed. He was on call at all times, and came to my help, whenever the computer gave a hiccup. I also wish to acknowledge the help given by my nieces Noelle and Triona, and nephews Brendan and Kevin who came to my assistance at various times.

I wish to thank Galway County Council, for publishing this work; the County Librarian, Pat Mc Mahon, and the Galway County Library staff; the Library staff at NUI Galway; the Library staff at GMT.; the staff of the Connacht Tribune, particularly John O'Donnell, Stan Shields and Joe O'Shaughnessy; to the Heritage Council who grant aided the work and particularly to all my friends, without whose encouragement the work would have flagged on many occasions.

I wish to remember all my Library colleagues who worked with me from 1954 to 1995, at the Galway County Libraries and at the Galway Regional Technical College Library. I hope their memories are as happy as mine.

Siothcháin agus Fairsinge.

Introduction.

Local history made an important impact in the latter half of the Twentieth Century. Galwegians, at home and abroad, became more interested in their past history and in genealogy. Many visited Galway from places as far away as The United States, Australia, Africa and The United Kingdom. The majority of those visitors sought information on genealogy, local history, places of interest and other relevant information in the local library. Galway County Libraries have an excellent collection of books; journals and periodicals; maps; photographs; archival material; newspapers, newspaper cuttings and other material relating to the county in the Local History Collection. This material is in constant use, by Galwegians, and visitors.

In the Nineteen Sixties The Library Association of Ireland encouraged its students, to compile bibliographies relating to county history, as theses towards application for the Fellowship of the Association. Many of these theses were subsequently published by the Local Authorities. "A Bibliography of the County Galway", by Mary Kavanagh was published in 1965; "Westmeath Authors" by Marian Keaney, in 1969; and "Galway Authors" by Helen Maher, in 1976. Those and other bibliographies, published by the relevant Local Authorities, provided the basis for further research and encouraged people interested in local history, to write histories of their parishes or townlands..

In the interim, more people have become interested in Local Studies. In Universities abroad there is a great interest in Irish Studies. As far away as Canada, The United States, Germany, France and Russia theses have been written on Galway literary figures such as Liam O'Flaherty, Lady Gregory, and Tom Murphy; there is an article in Japanese on Tom Murphy, in the Yeats Society of Japan Bulletin (1991); there are theses on the Tynagh Mines at The University of London, and Stratclyde; and on the Galway granite of Lettermullen at the University of Bristol. A map on the geology of Connemara has been published at the University of Glasgow. There is now a great interest in County Galway history, literature, archaeology, and other related material.

Where the location of material is known to me, I have inserted at the end of an entry a shortened form of the location e.g. GCL., ie. Galway County Libraries. Among Galwegians I have listed Saints associated with the County e.g. Sts Brendan, Enda and Jarlath, because of their great impact on the history of the area in which they lived. I have also listed some Bishops,- though not born in Co. Galway such as Archbishop John Mac Hale,- because of their influence on the history of the county at the relevant time.

This work is an expanded and updated edition of "A Bibliography of County Galway". There are entries on published books, periodical articles, maps, theses, and typed copies of archival material. I trust that this work will encourage those who are interested in our County Galway history to contribute to our heritage in print.
