John Lavin, an inmate of the Workhouse complained to me on Monday last that another inmate named Thomas Redington drew a knife at him. I made enquiry and learned there was no truth in the charge. I told Lavin that if he had any complaint to make, to bring it before the Guardians. He has not done so but instead he wrote to the Police who have been enquiring into the matter. Redington is a most inoffensive and useful man, and is at present in attendance on a very bad sick case.
